

Dear Barclays Hiring Team,

Few positions bring together as directly the work I have delivered, the market perspective I have since developed and the contribution I now want to make.

I joined Barclays through the Graduate Rotational Programme in Pune in 2015 and left in 2019 after being fast-tracked into a Project Manager role in Data & Integration Services, Corporate Bank. Applying for the Partnerships, External Engagement & Governance Support Manager role feels like picking up a thread I started inside this bank almost a decade ago, now with the governance and partnerships experience to do more with it.

Some of the most directly relevant experience includes:

Your ask	My evidence
Prepare governance materials and support oversight activity for emerging regulation	At Capco, I led programme delivery of Intraday Liquidity Management for Deutsche Bank's Treasury front office, building the RAID logs, KPI frameworks and reporting cadence that took the programme through a European Central Bank audit.
Identify and evaluate potential external partners against defined criteria	At Capco, working with Vitality, I ran the market research and evaluation process behind selecting external partners across Open Banking, BaaS and Green Finance, screening candidates before designing the workshops that secured cross-functional sign-off on fit and integration.
Build clear, consistent messaging for senior stakeholders	At EY, I built the steering committee briefs and strategy packs that kept a Director and Partner able to update senior leadership on the Click to Pay programme without gaps, managing an ecosystem of 30+ organisations including Barclays, JPMorgan and HSBC.
Support relationship management with partner counterparts	Across EY and Capco, I've managed partner counterpart relationships directly, including Barclays, JPMorgan Chase and the Asian Development Bank, developing new propositions with each.
Strong organisational skills to manage governance deliverables and stay ahead of deadlines	At Barclays, I was fast-tracked into one of the function's youngest Project Manager roles for delivering governance and execution excellence, reporting directly to CXO executives.

Across all of this, I care deeply about whether strategy can actually work - beyond the slide, report, blog or memo.

I bring a strong bias for turning ambiguous regulatory requirements into governance that people can actually act on, not just file away.

In the first year, I would seek to contribute in five practical ways:

- Map the current governance and reporting cadence for digital-asset regulation and flag where materials need to move faster.
- Build a partner evaluation framework that screens for financial stability, reputation and technical fit before deals reach legal.
- Establish a steering committee rhythm that gives senior stakeholders consistent updates without last-minute scrambles.
- Strengthen relationship management with existing partner counterparts to catch issues before they become escalations.
- Support the VP on complex governance and analysis work while identifying where I can start owning pieces of it independently.

This opportunity feels like a natural progression from the governance and partnerships work I've done at Capco and EY back to the institution where I started my career.

I would be proud to bring my governance, partnerships and stakeholder management experience back to Barclays.

Thank you for considering my application.

Regards, TT
